

University of Thessaly

Municipality of Volos

Technical Workshop

Integrated management of pests important to public health in the urban environment: Importance and control of the pine processionary moth

Town Hall of Volos, September 3, 2015

LIFE

INVITATION

The Municipality of Volos and the Department of Agriculture, Crop Production and Rural Environment of the University of Thessaly invites you to the workshop organized in the framework of the European Program LIFE PISA which is open to the public and addresses the importance and control of pests in urban and suburban areas, including potential problems in human health, with emphasis in the processionary pine moth

Workshop Program

11:30 Opening by the authorities

11:45 The pine processionary moth – Biology and Health risk assessment

N. Kavalieratos, Agricultural University of Athens

12:00 Problems that are caused by the processionary pine moth and other pests at the urban environment

D. Kontodimas, Benaki Phytopathological Institute

12:15 LIFE PISA project: Actions in Europe

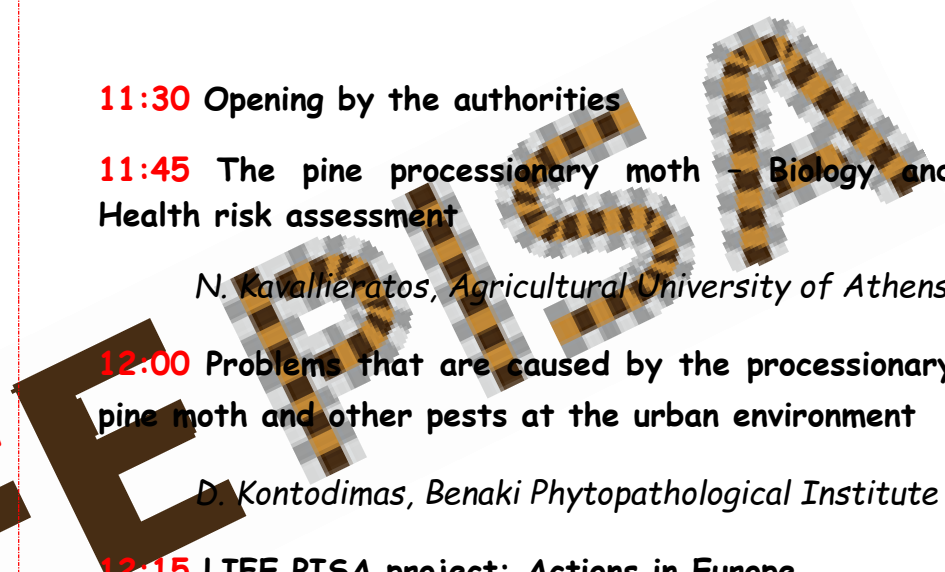

S. Galvez AIMPLAS, Spain, P. Trematerra, University of Molise, Italy, R. Moore, Forest Research, UK, Ch. Athanassiou, University of Thessaly

12:30 Actions of LIFE PISA in Greece

A. Nikolaidou, University of Thessaly

12:45 Conclusions-Discussion-Questions

Ch. Athanassiou, University of Thessaly

LIFE PISA